

July 2009 Newsletter

The Benefits of Workplace Flexibility:

Did you know that “61% of Gen Xers said they would jump ship if they were offered more flexible hours elsewhere”, CNN Money survey. This quote articulates the importance of embracing more flexible work environments. Companies that do not start embracing this are going to run the risk of losing talented professionals to companies that do. There is a litany of benefits to the employers that follow. Numerous studies have found that flexible workplace policies enhance employee productivity, reduce absenteeism, reduce costs, and appear to positively affect the bottom line. They also aid in recruitment and retention efforts, allowing employers to recruit and retain a talented, knowledgeable workforce and conserve the money and time that would otherwise have been spent recruiting, interviewing, selecting and training new employees. The benefits of these flexible programs remain constant regardless of the economic climate, and some employers have implemented workplace flexibility programs as an alternative to workforce reductions. Part-Time Pros would love to help your company launch this process.

Thanks,

Carey